(2) Alien requests a reopening of the case within one year from the date the visa was originally refused [see 22 CFR 42.81(e)];

(3) Visa was previously refused because the medical examination disclosed that the alien might be ineligible under INA 212(a)(1) and the examining physician requested that the applicant undergo follow-up examinations or tests prior to making a final decision;

(4) Visa was previously refused solely for the absence of a document which is available only from a U.S. Government agency, and if it is apparent that the failure of the alien to present the document was due to the U.S. Government agency's delay in providing it;

(5) Final decision on the application is delayed pending the receipt of an advisory opinion from the Department or the completion of investigations initiated by the Department or the post; or

The visa application fee is refundable only if the principal officer or the officer in charge of the consular section determines:

9 FAM 42.71 N5 Applicant with Possible Claim to U.S. Citizenship

(TL:VISA-466; 10-01-2002)

Under 22 CFR 40.2(a), a U.S. citizen is not eligible to receive an immigrant visa. If an immigrant visa applicant has a possible claim to U.S. citizenship, the visa officer should refer the applicant to the post's citizenship and passport officer for a resolution of the citizenship issue. If the matter cannot be resolved that same day, the visa officer should deny the immigrant visa application under INA 221(g) pending resolution of the citizenship issue. Any doubts regarding the applicant's U.S. citizenship status must be resolved before the visa officer may take final action on the visa application. [See 9 FAM 42.12 N4 (2)(b) and 9 FAM 40.2 N1(b).]
